

Data Protection and Destruction

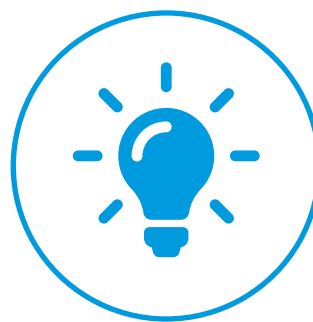

There can be serious consequences if you don't protect organizational data throughout its lifecycle, from collection to destruction.

Let's focus on security:

Effective data protection and destruction is important, especially for any organization that processes sensitive data.

Do your part in protecting data by following organizational policies and immediately reporting suspected or potential data breaches.

Thanks for taking the time to improve your security awareness!