

Sensitive Data: Different Classifications, Different Rules

Organizations, regulations, and laws establish rules for safe, secure handling of sensitive data.

Let's focus on security:

Three common classifications for sensitive data are PII, confidential information, and classified information.

Different types of data have different rules for use and disclosure. Be sure you know and understand them!

Be mindful of these classifications to keep you and your organization safe!